November 14-17 - "Battle-Tested Leadership Strategies for Executives"

Program Overview

A unique opportunity to have a fully immersive, exclusive, and interactive experience with role models who have demonstrated superior leadership skills in highly challenging and ever-changing situations leading teams and individuals in extraordinary circumstances. The faculty, all inspirational leaders of character, will lead and facilitate discussions and provide mentorship and guidance in small, interactive experiential sessions, which reflect the leadership principles, values, and ethics from the Army and West Point. The faculty will bring theory to life and demonstrate meaningful connections between military leadership, and leadership in the corporate, governments, and non-profit sectors. Participants will actively hone these concepts and apply the skills through experiential activities, while simultaneously expanding their professional network.

Testimonials

"This was one of the most beneficial and illuminating courses on development I have attended. In addition to enjoying every moment of curriculum and time with the instructors, it left me with life lessons that will drive me in both a personal and professional capacity."

Eileen Braden, V.P. of Political Affairs and Federation Relations, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

"I wish I had been to this program earlier in my career! It was so valuable & transformational to be with leaders and women outside of my own employer/organization. The faculty's stories were completely applicable to everyday leadership in any industry or business."

– Lynn Mulherin, District Vice President, University of Phoenix

Colonel (Ret.) Donna Brazil, Ph.D. retired from the United States Army as a Colonel with over 31 years of leadership experience. She served in leadership assignments both in the U.S. and abroad, to include Operations Officer for a 1300 person Logistics unit, Commander of a 210-person transportation unit and director of both the Leadership Course and Psychology Program at the United States Military Academy. She also served with the Office of Military Cooperation – Afghanistan as part of a team of advisors assisting the Afghan Ministry of Defense in establishing the Afghan Military Academy. In her final year of active duty, she served as the Deputy Head of the Department of Behavioral Sciences and Leadership at the United States Military Academy. Dedicated to improving the wellbeing of Soldiers and their families, Dr. Brazil continues to serve as a facilitator for the US Army’s Master Resilience Trainer Course. Dr. Brazil’s research interests center on leadership and leader development in varied settings. She has authored or co-authored numerous scholarly works published across an array of academic publications.

Brigadier General (Ret.) Becky Halstead is a 1981 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy and was the first female graduate of West Point to be promoted to General Officer. She was the senior Commanding General for logistics in Iraq and was the first female in U.S. history to command in combat at the strategic level. She served 27 years with the U.S. Army and retired as a General Officer in 2008. She culminated her career as the first female Chief of Ordnance and Commanding General of the Army’s Ordnance Center and Schools (equivalent to President of a University). She has over 15 years of executive-level leadership experience developing and training high-performing, complex and diverse teams capable of strategic planning and execution. She specializes in inspirational and motivational speaking, developing leader training programs, leader coaching, and mentoring; she recently published her first book, 24/7: The First Person You Must Lead Is You. She is on the Board of Directors for the West Point Association of Graduates, a lifetime member of the Association of the United States Army, and President of the Ordnance Corps Association. General Halstead is also an active spokesperson for the Foundation for Chiropractic Progress. General Halstead is a recipient of the 2007 National Women’s History Project award for “Generations of Women Moving History Forward.”

Brigadier General (Ret.) Maureen LeBoeuf, Ed.D. graduated from St. Bonaventure University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Education in 1976 and received a direct commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army. During her 28 year career in the Army, she held various staff and leadership positions as well as flying UH-1 helicopters in the continental United States and Europe. Most noteworthy was her assignment as the Professor and Head of the Department of Physical Education from 1997 until her retirement in 2004. She was the first woman department head at the United States Military Academy since it was founded in 1802. Maureen was the first woman inducted into the Seneca Battalion Affinity Group, St. Bonaventure University Reserve Officer Training Corps Hall of Fame. Maureen holds a Masters and Doctorate of Education, Curriculum and Instruction from the University of Georgia as well as an Executive Diploma in Strategic Leadership, U.S. Army War College and an Executive Diploma in Management and Leadership, U.S. Army Command and General Staff College.

Ms. Alison Levine is an adventurer, explorer, and mountaineer. She has climbed peaks on every continent, served as the team captain of the first American Women’s Everest Expedition, and skied across the Arctic Circle to the geographic North Pole. In January 2008, she made history as the first American to complete a 600-mile traverse from west Antarctica to the South Pole. Levine’s expeditions have been documented by more than 450 media outlets. She is the subject of the PBS documentary Living Courageously (2007) and has made numerous appearances on The Today Show, Good Morning America, and other national programs. In addition to having tackled some of the most extreme environments in the outdoors, Levine has also spent more than two decades in the business world. Her professional career has encompassed healthcare, technology, and finance. After earning her MBA from Duke University she moved to New York to work for investment banking firm Goldman Sachs. In 2003, she left Wall Street to serve as deputy finance director for Arnold Schwarzenegger in his successful bid to become Governor of California. Levine currently serves on the board of directors of TLDG; as an adjunct instructor at the United States Military Academy at West Point, where she teaches in the Department of Behavioral Sciences & Leadership; and is also the founder of consulting firm DareDevil Strategies.™

Colonel (Ret.) Pilar Ryan, Ph.D. research interests center on leadership development, the formation of organizational identity and culture, and the history of cross-cultural relations. She is the author of a number of publications, and has published essays on history and teaching history in the United States and Spain. She is a soldier-scholar who served in a variety of command and staff positions, stateside and overseas, during her 27-year Army career, including command of Bravo Battery, 1st Battalion, 30th Field Artillery Regiment, the largest artillery battery in the Army at the time. Some of her other assignments include service in a tactical Military Intelligence battalion in Germany, as executive officer of 1/30th Field Artillery Battalion, as Deputy G2 (Intelligence) of III Corps Artillery, both at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, as a political-military planner and counter-proliferation strategist for United States Forces Korea, and as the executive officer to the Assistant Chief of Staff, Strategy and Policy, United States Forces Korea/Commanding General, Marine Corps Forces-Korea. She retired from active military duty on July 1, 2013 as a Professor of History and Chief, International Division, Department of History, United States Military Academy. Upon her retirement, the Women’s Leadership Exchange named Colonel Ryan as one of its two 2013 Compass Award recipients.
